Temple University's summer study abroad offerings include programs based at our international campuses in Rome and Tokyo, as well as programs around the world led by Temple University faculty. Our summer programs serve a variety of needs—whether you are looking to take courses in your major or minor, complete GenEd requirements, or acquire language skills, we hope that one of our programs will allow you to achieve your academic goals. Each of our programs is quite distinct; some allow you to select from a broad range of courses, while others are much more specialized, focusing on one or two disciplines. New programs are created each year, so we encourage you to get a glimpse of our programs in this brochure and then visit our website for detailed up-to-date information. And, of course, please contact us with any questions—we look forward to working with you.

All programs are open to students from any U.S. college or university. Non-Temple students may find information about accreditation and transfer of credits on our website.

Afro-Brazilian Culture and Popular Brazilian Music provides exceptional educational opportunities for undergraduate students of Africology and African American studies, Latin American studies, Portuguese, history, music, dance, art and related disciplines to study Brazilian culture, civilization and music. Based in the historic city of Salvador, the program includes two courses taught in English by Dr. Kenneth Dossar of Temple University, as well as supplementary non-credit Portuguese language instruction provided by Diálogo Language School during the first half of the program. Through cultural workshops, field trips and meetings with local leaders and artists, students have access to a variety of unique experiences.

Program Director: Dr. Kenneth Dossar, kenneth.dossar@temple.edu
LEIPZIG, GERMANY
Intensive German Language

Level: Undergraduate
Credits/Dates: Four-week program (4 credits in German): June 1–July 1, 2017; Eight-week program [8 total credits in German (4 credits per session)]: June 1–August 5, 2017
Housing: Residence hall

Take your language skills to the next level by participating in Temple’s intensive German language program in Leipzig. The program is designed for undergraduates who have completed at least one semester of university-level German. You will spend the first few days of the program in Berlin and then travel as a group to the Herder Institut of the University of Leipzig. Faculty from the Institut will teach you in a course that reflects your German language level. You can expect to further your language skills through the group project component, which includes conducting research outside of the classroom on a topic of interest such as music in Leipzig, German soccer, or the Peaceful Revolution. Located in the heart of Europe in the former East Germany, Leipzig has a population of more than 500,000 and is known as a city of music, the arts, science and learning. Your on-site program director, Dr. Patricia Melzer, a Temple University faculty member, will lead several excursions and activities within Leipzig during the first session, and you will also have opportunities to explore the city on your own. Attending a Bach Music Festival concert, watching a soccer match on a screen in one of the main plazas, and taking in the magnificent architecture and historical monuments on a walk through the city are some favorite student activities in Leipzig.

Program Director: Dr. Patricia Melzer, pmeizer@temple.edu

PARIS, FRANCE
French Language at the Sorbonne

Level: Undergraduate
Credits/Dates: Four-week program (4 credits in French): June 29–July 29, 2017; Six-week program (6 credits in French): June 29–August 12, 2017
Housing: Homestay, residence hall or pension

Spend an unforgettable summer in Paris studying French at the Sorbonne. Sorbonne language courses are designed to fit individual needs; whether you are a student with basic French or a student with more experience, you will enroll in a course appropriate for your language level. The course includes a phonetics laboratory component which will guide you in honing your speaking skills, and as a supplement to classroom instruction, you will have the opportunity to attend optional lectures on various aspects of French life. Outside of the classroom, you will have ample time to explore Paris, using your French in a variety of real-life settings. Whether you are having dinner at a lively café, taking part in a Bastille Day celebration, cheering on cyclists in the Tour de France, or attending one of the various music, theater, dance or film festivals, Paris is alive with activity during the summer. Dr. Ruth Thomas, a Temple faculty member who serves as your on-site director, will also coordinate four full-day excursions on weekends to sites such as Chartres, Reims, Giverny, or the Chateaux on the Loire.

ACCRA, GHANA
West African Civilization and Language

Level: Undergraduate and Graduate
Credits/Dates: Five-week program [6 credits in Africology and African American Studies (Independent Study may be approved in some cases)]:
   July 4–August 8, 2017
Housing: Residence hall

Explore classical and contemporary African language, history, politics, literature, music, dance and theater through academic study and personal cultural experiences in Ghana this summer. Learn about the origins of several major West African civilizations through in-class study and excursions to sites within and beyond Accra; particular emphasis is placed on the medieval empires of Ghana, Mali and Songhai and on topics most relevant to the program location including the transatlantic slave trade, the impact of colonialism, independence and current issues. You will also explore Akan Twi, one of the important languages of West Africa. It is spoken or understood by about 10 million peoples in Ghana, La Cote d’Ivoire (Ivory Coast), and Togo and is the most widely spoken language in Ghana. You will be introduced to the basic structures of the language and learn how to rapidly acquire skills in speaking, reading and writing. Aspects of contemporary Akan culture relevant to language use will also be addressed. The courses are taught by Dr. Abu Abarry, Professor Emeritus of the Department of Africology and African American Studies at Temple University. They are supplemented by lectures given by faculty members from the University of Ghana in Legon, one of the most reputable higher education institutions in the region. Lectures and readings, as well as observation of and participation in traditional and contemporary events of cultural and linguistic significance, are integrated into the curriculum. In addition to your day-to-day exploration of Accra, you will visit numerous historic and cultural sites such as the ancient slave castles at Cape Coast and Elmina, the W.E.B. DuBois and Kwame Nkrumah Mausoleums, The National Theater, George Padmore Library, and traditional markets.

Program Director: Dr. Abu Abarry, aabarry@temple.edu
Conduct an anthropological study in the medieval desert town of Dhrangadhra, Gujarat during Temple’s four-week summer program. The program is intended to investigate religious and artistic traditions, both ancient and contemporary. The mode of study is highly experiential and combines workshops, field trips and short apprenticeships. As a program participant, you will conduct an independent field research project focused on an area of personal academic interest within and around Dhrangadhra, a town with a population of 100,000. Students have chosen to study many topics, including but not limited to: gender roles in theatrical performance; history and significance of Hindu gods and goddesses; traditional dance; Indian music composition; the art of mehndi; the sacredness of cows; marriage; widows; disability; nutrition and growth of school age children; women’s health and issues relating to domestic abuse; and water quality and sanitation. Study is supervised by Dr. Jayasinhji Jhala, associate professor of anthropology, whose discussions provide context for your experience and research. Local academics, performers, artists, religious leaders, and interpreters also serve as resources for you during the program. As this is an experiential learning opportunity, students with skills in video making, photography, painting, sculpture, jewelry making, dance, music, theater or yoga are encouraged to apply.

Program Director: Dr. Jayasinhji Jhala, jjhala@temple.edu

ARTENA, ITALY
Excavation of the Roman Villa in Artena

Level: Undergraduate and Graduate
Credits/Dates: Four-week program (6 undergraduate credits in Art History or Anthropology; 3 graduate credits in Art History): July 7–August, 5 2017
Housing: Small, modest hotel

Learn the techniques of archaeological fieldwork by participating in the excavation of the Roman villa in Artena, a small hilltown approximately 40 miles southeast of Rome. The ongoing excavation, under the direction of Temple University Rome faculty member and archaeologist Jan Gadeyne and his colleague Cécile Brouillard, has revealed substantial remains of a Roman villa and other buildings that existed from the 4th century BCE until at least the 7th century CE. The excavation course, designed for undergraduates and graduate students, includes learning how to read stratigraphies, artifacts and building fragments in order to reconstruct the development of the site in time and place. You will actively be part of the excavation process “from the pickaxe to the pencil,” learning to collect, describe, identify and draw archaeological evidence. You will be required to keep a journal in which you record your experiences and observations, and scholarly literature will assist you in contextualizing the site. Weekly excursions to sites and museums nearby are designed to better understand the archaeological remains and artifacts in the broader context of the material culture of central Italy.

Program Director: Dr. Jan Gadeyne, jan.gadeyne@temple.edu

TEMPLE UNIVERSITY ROME

Discover the possibilities of Rome—a living museum, vibrant business and government center, and hub of Mediterranean culture. Over its 50-year history, Temple Rome has maintained strong academic and cultural programming that takes advantage of the splendid resources Rome and Italy have to offer. Programs are offered during the summer, fall and spring semesters and are housed in the Villa Caproni, a handsome building facing the Tiber River in the heart of Rome, just north of Piazza del Popolo and within short walking distance of the Spanish Steps and the Borghese Gardens—an ideal setting for a study abroad center.

TEMPLE ROME SUMMER IN ITALY

Rome Summer Session

Level: Undergraduate
Courses/Dates: Six-week program (2 courses, 5-8 credits in various disciplines; internships also available): May 24–July 7, 2017
Housing: Apartments, homestay or independent housing

Use the Eternal City as your classroom this summer. In addition to the semester program, Temple University Rome offers an undergraduate summer session. During the six-week session, you will enroll in two courses, selecting from offerings in a variety of disciplines. In summer 2017, these disciplines include: anthropology, art, art history, business, criminal justice, dance, English, GenEd (Arts, Science and Technology, and Human Behavior), Greek and Roman classics, history, and Italian language. Credit-bearing internships in a variety of fields are offered.

With the exception of Italian language courses, all Temple Rome course instruction is in English. A feature of the Temple Rome summer program is frequent, on-site instruction for many of the courses, enabling you to study firsthand the sites, treasures, traditions and culture associated with the people and history of Italy. These visits will bring academic subjects to life and further expose you to daily life in Rome. From wandering the narrow cobblestone streets of Trastevere, to buying food from your favorite vendor at the Trionfale Market, to seeing art and architecture up close and personal, Rome offers an exciting environment for exploration during the summer.

ROME, ITALY

Rome Graduate Seminar in Aesthetics and Cultural Studies: Vision and Rationality

Level: Graduate
Credits/Dates: Four-week program (6 credits in English or Art History): May 24–June 24, 2017
Housing: Independent housing (recommended) or shared apartments

Temple University Rome offers a four-week graduate seminar designed to bring together the disciplines of aesthetics and cultural studies. In its interdisciplinary thrust, the six-credit seminar, taught in English, is intended to serve as a foundation for advanced study in the human sciences and to reflect the most current trends of thought in post-modern culture. The seminar focuses on the troubled relation between perception and cognition in three historical moments of Western culture: the Renaissance and the birth of single point perspective; the Counter-Reformation and the Baroque period; and the postmodern critique of Enlightenment rationality. You will speculate about how our culture has been shaped by collaboration and conflict among visual, visionary, ideological and rational ways of knowing the world. The scope of inquiry embraces literary, philosophical, painterly and cinematic texts. The seminar entails an intensive program of class work, field trips and guest lectures, and the city of Rome is used extensively as a resource. Graduate and post-doctoral students in fields such as literature, film studies, philosophy, art and social theory are welcome to apply.

Program Director: Dr. Alan Singer, alansinger00@comcast.net

SIENA, ITALY

Biomedical Research in Siena

Level: Undergraduate
Credits/Dates: Seven-and-a-half week program (3 credits in Biology (Research): May 24–July 16, 2017
Housing: Shared apartments in both Rome and Siena

A limited number of opportunities are available for qualified Temple College of Science and Technology students and non-Temple students to participate in a special for-credit research program in Siena, Italy. Students majoring in a discipline related to the research focus of the lab(s) in Italy, such as biology, chemistry and biochemistry, are preferred, but other majors with appropriate academic backgrounds may be considered. You’ll be involved in research that is a collaboration between the Sbarro Institute for Cancer Research and Molecular Medicine and the Department of Medicine, Surgery and Neurosciences at the University of Siena. The program takes place from late May through mid-July.

The program is conducted in English (knowledge of Italian is not required). Upon arrival in Italy, you will spend nine days in Rome for orientation and will travel with the group to Siena for the remaining 6 weeks of the program. During the orientation in Rome, you’ll be introduced to Italian language and culture, and visit local hospitals. Once in Siena, you’ll conduct research at two labs to expose you to different techniques, participate in clinical observation, and attend weekly lectures. Additional activities will introduce you to historic sites and cultural activities in Siena beyond the lab.

Program Director: Dr. Antonio Giordano, giordano@temple.edu
VENICE, ITALY
Art, Culture and Filmmaking through the 57th Biennale

Level: Undergraduate
Credits/Dates: Four-week program [7 credits (3 credits in Art History; Film and Media Arts; or Painting, Drawing and Sculpture AND 4 credits in Art History; Film and Media Arts; or Painting, Drawing, and Sculpture)]: July 7–August 5, 2017
Housing: Shared apartments

Based in Venice, Italy, this program is an opportunity to experience art, culture and filmmaking through the 57th Venice Biennale, one of the oldest and most significant showcases for modern and contemporary art in the world. Started at the end of the 19th century, it is the premier showcase for modern and contemporary art. The primary focus of the program will be to utilize this mammoth exhibition as a laboratory for experimental learning. In addition, the program will be supplemented by a series of four walking tours of Venice that will provide students with a background of Venetian history and culture from the Renaissance to the present day. Tours will focus on the Ghetto, the architectural history and significance of Venice, and the art of the Renaissance through visits to museums, Scuola Grande, Accademia, local churches and cathedrals. Additional visits to specific museums for both contemporary and Renaissance collections will be organized, and students will also take day trips to the neighboring islands of Murano, Burano and Torcello as well to the neighboring cities of Padua and Trieste. Students enroll in two courses, for a total of seven credit hours: History of Experimental and Avantgarde Film, Video and Media, and Global Art Forms: Toward a Fantasy of Making.

ST. THOMAS PARISH, JAMAICA
International Service Learning

Level: Undergraduate
Credits/Dates: Five-week program (3 credits in Education or Sociology (Service Learning) and 3 credits in Urban Education or Sociology (Community-Based Research Project)): May 14–June 17, 2017
Housing: Guest house

Explore history, culture, diversity, education and development in Jamaica through community-based service learning and research based in the rural Parish of St. Thomas. You will enroll in two integrated courses that meet four times a week to address theories and practices of service learning, community development, and community-based research. You will also participate in a service project designed in partnership with a community-based organization three days a week. Past participants have come from a variety of fields, including the social and behavioral sciences, education, organizational development, counseling, public health, and agriculture. Students have worked with women’s cooperatives; organizations that support farmers and rural community development; and students, counselors, and teachers in pre-primary, primary, and secondary schools, as well as a school for pregnant teens. Through service projects and coursework, students have previously explored gender issues, alternative energy, conflict and violence, fair trade marketing, sustainable agriculture, art education, and school discipline, as well as their own roles in creating a more equitable world.

Program Director: Dr. Donna-Marie Peters, dmpeters@temple.edu

General summer program dates are tentative and subject to change.
TEMPLE UNIVERSITY, JAPAN CAMPUS

Founded in 1982, Temple University, Japan Campus (TUJ) is the oldest and largest foreign university in Japan and offers an extensive range of educational programs. As an undergraduate student, you may study abroad at TUJ during the summer, fall and/or spring semester. TUJ is located within two buildings in the Minami Azabu and Mita districts in central Tokyo and is surrounded by several embassies, international companies and two major universities.

TOKYO, JAPAN
10-week Summer Semester

Level: Undergraduate
Courses/Dates: May 17–July 30, 9-13 credits in various disciplines
Housing: Options include a residence hall, homestay or independent housing

Based at Temple University, Japan Campus (TUJ), this program offers you the opportunity to choose from a range of undergraduate courses, including several focusing on Asia, and to study alongside bilingual Japanese students. You’ll also be able to further your language skills through Japanese language courses, which are offered at all levels, beginning through advanced. All courses at TUJ are taught by distinguished faculty, and all instruction is in English except for language courses. In addition, internship opportunities are available in a wide range of fields. The TUJ academic calendar includes three semesters: fall, spring and summer. Summer study abroad students can therefore expect to take advantage of the regular offerings, activities and resources normally found during the academic year.

Outside of the classroom, we hope that you will participate in the many social activities organized each semester. We also hope that you will take advantage of the full schedule of outings, events and workshops that expose you to new locations and various aspects of life in Tokyo and throughout Japan.

SEOUl, koRea
Global Mosaic

Level: Undergraduate
Credits/Dates: Four-week program (3 credits in Honors Intellectual Heritage or Intellectual Heritage): June 15–July 15, 2017
Housing: Residence hall

Enrolling in the “Global Mosaic II” course, which is offered as either Intellectual Heritage 0852: Mosaic Humanities Seminar II (3 credits) or Honors Intellectual Heritage 0952: Mosaic Humanities Seminar II (3 credits), will take you through a vivid historical landscape with Seoul, Korea as your classroom. Dotted with towering skyscrapers and glitzy shopping malls, the city is also home to serene Buddhist temples and beautifully crafted gardens. The program is based at one of the top universities in Korea in the heart of Seoul. All major attractions can be easily reached by bus or subway stations within walking distance of campus. The area is a vibrant and energetic community with lots of options for students to experience the local culture. The program director will organize a variety of field-trips throughout Seoul including visits to the Gyeongbokgung Palace, SM Town, Jeonju Traditional Hanok Village, and the DMZ. The host university will also organize a variety of extra-curricular activities for Korean and international students.

Program Director: Dr. Douglas Greenfield, dmg@temple.edu

General summer program dates are tentative and subject to change.
DERRY, NORTHERN IRELAND
Culture and History

Level: Undergraduate
Credits/Dates: Four-week program (3 credits in History or English):
   June 24–July 23, 2017
Housing: Residence hall

“Building Bridges in Ireland” is an intensive interdisciplinary examination of Irish culture. For four weeks you will live in Derry studying Irish culture, history, literature, music, language, and the environment. Lectures by historians, literary experts, writers, and musicians as well as visits to historic sites, museums, and events are an integral part of the program. You will also take five or six day-long hikes through the coastal peninsulas of Donegal in the Republic of Ireland and the Giant’s Causeway in Antrim, Northern Ireland; and you’ll explore Derry, where pivotal confrontations of “The Troubles” took place. When people began understanding the background of the terrible divisions that existed in Northern Ireland it served to break down the wall of ignorance and prejudice. This in turn led to the building of bridges of understanding between Protestants and Catholics and fostered a new era of concord and optimism.

Program Director: Dr. Ralph Young, rfy@temple.edu
OVIEDO, SPAIN

Level: Undergraduate
Credits/Dates: Four-and-a-half week program (6 credits in Spanish; or 3-4 credits in Spanish and 3 credits in business or Intellectual Heritage):
   June 27–July 30, 2017
Housing: Homestay

Enhance your Spanish language skills while discovering Oviedo, a small yet vibrant city in northwestern Spain. With a population of 220,000, Oviedo is the capital of Asturias and a gateway for great scenery, outdoor activities and beaches. While the city has an impressive old-town center, museums and significant historic architectural sites, it is also a modern city featuring concerts, opera, theater and exhibitions. The program is based at the University of Oviedo, where courses are taught by native Spanish professors of the University of Oviedo and faculty from Temple University. You will spend the first several days exploring Madrid and its environs before traveling to Oviedo to begin classes.

The summer program is designed for students with at least one year of university-level Spanish (one semester if taking the business or Intellectual Heritage courses). You will enroll in one course in Spanish language and one course in Spanish literature, cultural studies, business, or Intellectual Heritage. All instruction is in Spanish, except for the business and Intellectual Heritage courses, which are taught in English.

Program Director: Dr. Jaime Durán, jduran@temple.edu

LONDON, ENGLAND, UNITED KINGDOM

London: The City in English Culture

Level: Undergraduate
Credits/Dates: Six-week program (6 credits in English OR 3 credits in English and 3 credits in Film and Media Arts): June 29–August 11, 2017
Housing: Residence hall

Bring your studies to life this summer in London. London has always played a central role in the life of Great Britain, in its politics, its economy, and its imagination. From the opening of Chaucer’s Canterbury Tales at the Tabard Inn to the multicultural North London of Zadie Smith’s White Teeth, it is difficult to find an important English author who does not turn to London, celebrating it, satirizing it, or simply trying to grasp its wondrous complexity. For English majors and non-majors interested in the arts, culture, and diversity, London offers an unparalleled place to study English literature and culture, both for its rich history and its contemporary vibrancy as one of the truly global cities of the world. It is particularly rich in theater, from the National Theatre to the Globe to smaller, cutting edge companies. The program is designed to make the best use of London, with classes meeting regularly on-site in the city. You will enroll in two of the four courses offered, for a total of six credits. The four course offerings include two English courses (one is cross-listed in Film and Media Arts) and two GenEd courses (GenEd Race and Diversity, also offered as an Honors course, and GenEd Arts).

Program Directors:
Dr. Steven Newman, snewman@temple.edu
Dr. Srimati Mukherjee, srimati.mukherjee@temple.edu

GENERAL ACADEMIC MATTERS

GenEd for Temple Students
Temple students: by successfully completing (with a C– or better) credit-bearing coursework with at least three semester hours on an approved study abroad program with a minimum stay abroad of 28 days, your GenEd (GG) World Society may be waived.

The Temple Rome Summer Session offers GenEd Arts, Science and Technology and Human Behavior. Temple Japan Summer Semester also offers some GenEd courses.

Additional GenEd special offerings in summer 2017 include:
• London: Arts; Race and Diversity
• Spain: Intellectual Heritage Mosaic II and Honors Mosaic II
• Korea: Intellectual Heritage Mosaic II and Honors Mosaic II

View course listings online for specific GenEd course numbers and descriptions.

Accreditation
All Temple University study abroad programs, as an integral part of Temple University, are fully accredited by the Middle States Association of Colleges and Schools.

Transcript and Transfer of Credits for Non-Temple Students
We advise you to discuss your academic plan, selection of courses, applicability of financial aid, and ultimate transfer of credit with your home institution prior to departure for the program. The credits you earn on your program will be recorded on a standard Temple University transcript. If you are not a Temple student, your official transcript will be sent directly to your home institution free of charge following the conclusion of the program.
PROGRAM SERVICES

Pre-departure Preparations
Once accepted, we provide you with detailed materials designed to guide you in preparing for your time abroad. Pre-departure materials include:

- Cultural preparation resources
- Course registration materials
- Passport information and visa application instructions (if applicable)
- Travel information and arrival instructions
- Health and safety information
- Health insurance coverage details
- Housing details
- Billing information with confirmed tuition, program fees, and payment policies

Orientations
A pre-departure orientation program is conducted in Philadelphia, and an online version of the orientation is available for students who do not live in the Philadelphia area. Further orientation takes place upon arrival abroad.

Housing Placement
Housing is guaranteed for all program participants. Types of accommodations vary by program; details are available on our website.

Passports and Visas
A current passport valid for six months after the date of return is required for all programs. In addition, many countries require you to obtain a visa for summer study. If required, information on the visa application process will be provided to you after acceptance to the program (prior for Japan). A passport is required as part of any visa application process, so if you do not have a valid passport, you should apply for one immediately. All students are expected to have a passport within two weeks of program acceptance. All Japan program applicants are required to submit a copy of a valid passport by February 15. For information on obtaining or renewing a U.S. passport, visit http://travel.state.gov.

Health Insurance
All program participants have international health insurance coverage through GeoBlue. Education Abroad obtains the insurance on your behalf, and the cost appears on your program bill. While all program participants have coverage from GeoBlue, be sure to maintain your U.S. health insurance coverage for your time abroad. More detailed insurance information is provided to accepted students.

Emergency Services
In the event of an emergency overseas, all students on a Temple University study abroad program also have access to 24-hour assistance through International SOS. International SOS services help students with travel and security information when away from home.
COSTS, FINANCIAL AID and SCHOLARSHIPS

Program and Housing Deposits
Upon acceptance to a summer program, a $200 non-refundable program deposit will be due within two weeks to confirm your participation. If you choose Temple-arranged housing (mandatory for some programs and optional for others; refer to the program descriptions online for specifics), a $200 non-refundable housing deposit will be required by the deadline set for your program. Both deposits will be credited to your account.

Cost of Attendance
You will be billed regular Temple University tuition based on residency, plus fees to cover other program costs. For estimated costs of each program, please refer to the relevant program description on our website. Confirmed tuition and fees and estimates for out-of-pocket expenses will be included in the pre-departure information provided to all participants.

Financial Aid
Temple Students: Temple students are eligible to apply for financial assistance through regular university channels. You should discuss available aid directly with Student Financial Services.

Non-Temple Students: Students from other institutions should first consult with financial aid officers and study abroad advisors on their own campuses to find out which sources of aid are available to them and must apply for financial aid through their own institutions. Federal and state financial aid are usually transferable to Temple study abroad programs with approval of your home institution. Note: In many cases, federal guidelines limit the types of aid available to students taking less than six credits during the summer. It may be possible to apply for other types of aid with less than six credits, such as alternative loans. Students should confirm the rules with their home institutions.

Scholarships
Education Abroad Scholarships
Scholarships for Temple students range from $1,000 to $2,000 in the summer and are awarded on the basis of academic merit and financial need. Visit our website for scholarship eligibility requirements and application procedures.

Gilman Scholarships
Gilman Scholarships provide awards for study abroad to U.S. citizens who are receiving Pell Grants. Selected recipients are awarded up to $5,000 to defray the costs associated with studying abroad. For more information, visit www.iie.org/gilman. Temple students, visit studyabroad.temple.edu/gilman for application and advising procedures. Non-Temple students, speak with the Gilman advisor at your home institution.

Temple Merit Scholarship
Educational Enhancement Stipends
If you receive a Temple Merit Scholarship Educational Enhancement Stipend, you have the option to use one stipend per academic year (academic years run fall through summer) towards a summer or semester study abroad program. You may apply the award toward a summer and a semester if you study abroad during different academic years and have multiple stipends.

Additional Scholarship Information
For more detailed information about these and other funding sources, visit the Scholarships section of the Education Abroad website at studyabroad.temple.edu/scholarships. Please note that the awarding of a scholarship may have an impact on the financial aid awarded to you by your institution. Contact your financial aid office if you have any questions about this.
INTERNSHIP PROGRAM SCHOLARSHIPS
AT TEMPLE UNIVERSITY, JAPAN CAMPUS (TUJ)

In support of the robust internship program at TUJ, Temple offers two internship scholarships. Temple and Non-Temple students are encouraged to apply.

Freeman East Asia Internship Scholarship
Thanks to a generous grant from Freeman Foundation, TUJ students participating in a for-credit internship during summer 2017 may be eligible to apply for a limited number of scholarships of up to $5,000. The Freeman Foundation aims to increase the number of U.S. undergraduate and graduate students pursuing internships in East and Southeast Asia. In addition to their scholarship funding, Freeman scholars are matched with a professional mentor in Tokyo that provides guidance on life in Japan, the Japanese professional culture, as well as general career advice.

TOMODACHI Internship Program Scholarship
In 2015, a new internship program scholarship was made possible by the TOMODACHI Initiative. This scholarship was created in response to President Obama’s and Prime Minister Abe’s April 2014 commitment to facilitate Japanese internship opportunities for American students. The initiative will contribute to the bilateral goal of doubling two-way student exchanges by the year 2020. Temple University is able to award scholarships of up to $5,000 to qualified students to participate in the TUJ internship program, with additional tuition support for out-of-state students (for summer, the amount varies depending on number of credits).

PROGRAM ELIGIBILITY

Temple University study abroad programs are open to qualified students matriculated at any U.S. college or university.

Eligibility for all summer programs is limited to those students who:

- possess a minimum 2.5 cumulative GPA on a 4.0 scale from all colleges/universities attended.*
- are enrolled as full-time matriculated students at the time of application as well as during the spring semester prior to studying abroad.
- intend a full-time program of study while abroad and will be applying credits earned toward a degree.
- are in good academic and disciplinary standing. For more details on this policy, visit the policies section of our website.

Certain programs have additional eligibility requirements; please refer to the individual program description online.

Students will be selected mainly on the basis of their intellectual purpose and emotional maturity.

*The Siena program requires a 3.0 GPA.
APPLICATION REQUIREMENTS and PROCEDURES

Before Beginning an Application
Please review all program-specific information online, including eligibility, before beginning an application. All applicants are advised to discuss their plans to study abroad with their academic advisor. Non-Temple students should confirm study abroad procedures with their home institution before beginning an application.

Application
Visit our website studyabroad.temple.edu and click on “Apply” to begin your application.

Submissions
Please note that the following submissions will be required. If you are applying online, all application requirements will appear within the online application system.

Submissions for All Applicants:
• One academic recommendation from a faculty member who has taught you in class. Note: Students applying to the Rome Graduate Seminar in Aesthetics and Cultural Studies are not required to submit an academic recommendation but are asked within the application to provide the names and contact information of two faculty members who can speak on behalf of their work.

Additional Submission for Temple Students:
• Academic Advisor form (Faculty advisor form for Siena students), asking to confirm your course selection is appropriate for your academic plan. The form is available within the online application and can be sent electronically to your advisor for submission.

Additional Submissions for Non-Temple Students:
• Transcripts from all colleges/universities attended since high school (Official from current university; all others may be unofficial). If you are applying earlier than the semester immediately preceding the program, your acceptance to the program may be provisional, pending receipt and review of an updated official transcript.
• Home College/University Approval Form indicating you have received approval from your home institution to study abroad on the program to which you are applying.

Some programs have additional application requirements. Please refer to the eligibility information within the program description for any program-specific requirements.

Further details about application procedures are available on our website. If you have any questions or technical problems with the online application system, please e-mail study.abroad@temple.edu or call toll-free: 877-256-6913.

Summer Program Application Deadline
February 15

Completed applications, including all supporting documents, must be received by February 15. Completed applications are reviewed on a rolling-admissions basis; students are encouraged to apply well in advance of the deadlines.

Students applying to the Tokyo Summer Semester should begin their application well before the February 15 deadline to access important visa application instructions.
ABOUT TEMPLE EDUCATION ABROAD

Temple University has a long history of commitment to international education and to study abroad in particular. We created our first program in Paris in 1950, a summer program that is still active today. Our Temple Rome program, founded in 1966, has developed into a vibrant study abroad center hosting over 500 students per year for semester and summer programs. Another major milestone was the establishment of Temple University Japan in 1982, which today is a thriving branch campus with both undergraduate and graduate level programs. Throughout the years, Temple has encouraged faculty to develop and lead programs around the world to provide additional opportunities for students; many of our dedicated faculty have continued their programs year after year.

We in Temple Education Abroad are proud to carry out Temple’s commitment to study abroad by continually developing and strengthening study abroad programming not only for Temple students but for the hundreds of students from other U.S. colleges and universities who participate in our programs each year. Our office currently administers programs in Brazil, England, France, Germany, Ghana, India, Italy, Jamaica, Japan, Korea, Northern Ireland and Spain, and exchanges worldwide.

We take pride in providing quality advising, thorough pre-departure preparation, and timely, individualized support for students as they prepare to go abroad. As a public institution, we are committed to keeping our programs as cost-effective as possible while maintaining high standards for academics and cultural integration, and student safety, health and support. We are able to achieve this by drawing upon our many resources abroad as well as those of Temple University’s Main Campus.

Thank you for your interest in our programs, and we look forward to working with you.
